

Stain Removal Techniques.

This guide has been produced to assist in identifying the correct method of dealing with potential damage to carpets, beds and upholstery. The key areas of identification are

Liquid spills,

Red Wine, Tea, Coffee etc: If the area is still wet then use a dry white towel and place over the affected area to blot as much of the spill into the towel. When no further transfer is made into the towel, then use another white towel, wet it in warm water and wring until any excess water has been removed, Then fold it a few times and place over the affected area and place a weight on top to allow any further staining to wick up into the towel.

Urine / Milk:

as above but ensure that you do not overwet the area as this will allow the contamination to spread and make removal and treatment for the odours much more difficult.

Solids:

Vomit or excrement. Firstly remove excess solids by using a spatula to lift as much solid waste as possible. Using a rolled damp white towel slowly brush over the affected area working from the outside of the stain to the centre. Any transfer will be visible on the towel and should be repeated until no further soiling is being transferred into the towel. Then use another white towel, wet it in warm water and wring until any excess water has been removed, Then fold it a few times and place over the affected area and place a weight on top to allow any further staining to wick up into the towel.

Please remember that these guidelines have been produced to help you if any further information is required then I can be contacted on 07715 820145